In order to be eligible to register for any upper-division CRW course, you must meet the relevant prerequisite. 2000-level CRW courses are prerequisite for 3000-level courses, and 3000-level courses for 4000-level. Exceptional students may apply directly from 1000- to 3000-level CRW courses through the manuscript submission and review process. Students may take each 3000- or 4000-level CRW course up to three times, and take 3000- after 4000-level courses, but the Creative Writing Model of Study suggests that students should not take more than five upper-division CRW courses in a career. Students may not enroll simultaneously in two CRW courses in the same genre.
